A PICTORIAL DRAMATIC STUDY OF SOCIETY AND ITS SHAMS
IN FOUR PARTS OF MOTION PICTURES

The picture is strong, powerful and gripping every moment of its length. From the time that the happy romance of Virginia and Stuyvesant is broken off, because of the objection of the latter's parents, until they are finally united again, after Virginia and her step-mother have gone through the terrible ordeal of becoming mixed up in the so-called aristocracy of Europe, the story holds one almost entranced.

MAYERS CLEARED IN FIRST CASE

Constables Report Bridge in Bad Repair and Road in Poor Condition. Two Sales Confirmed. Two Appointments Considered.

After hearing several witnesses in the case of the Commonwealth vs. James Clingan and John D. Mayers, of Littlestown, this afternoon the Court directed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. The case involved the charge of selling liquor on Sunday at Hotel Willard, Littlestown. The other cases against Mr. Mayers were continued to August term of Court.

The principal witness for the prosecution was David Duttera, produce dealer, of Littlestown, who told of having bought beer at the hotel on May 24, 1914. Other witnesses called for the Commonwealth failed to substantiate his testimony, and it was shown that Duttera, some time after the day of the alleged offense, had himself signed Mayers' liquor application.

Harry Blocher, when called, stated emphatically that he was not with Duttera on the day in question; and Harry Myers, said that he had secured beer at the hotel on Sunday, but not the one on which Constable Gouker had based the information.

When the Commonwealth rested their case after hearing these witnesses the attorneys asked that the Court direct the jury to bring in a verdict of "not guilty" and their contention was granted.

District Attorney Wible, and Wm. Arch McClean represented the Commonwealth, and William Hersh and J. Donald Swope the defendants.

Burton M. Alleman, of Littlestown, was named as foreman of the grand jury for this term of Court; and the stipstaves are Clarence Keefer and J. L. Group.

The constable of Oxford township reported the bridge over the Little Conewago, near Diehl's Mill, to be in bad condition and the District Attorney was instructed to call the attention of the State Highway Department to it. The constable of Reading township reported a bad condition in the road near the "Double Bridge" and north of Hollinger's school house. District Attorney Wible was instructed to notify the township supervisors to have the road placed in proper repair.

Upon petition, J. D. Shafer was appointed judge of elections in District Number One of Tyrone township, to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of G. K. Walker from the district. The Court ratified the appointment of James W. Eicholtz, to fill the unexpired term of John H. Raymond, burgess of Gettysburg. Judge Swope made the appointment on April 14.

The private sale of the property of the late J. Edward Schriver, of Gettysburg, to M. Edna Schriver, of Philadelphia, for $3400 was confirmed.

The private sale of land in Mt. Joy township, belonging to the late Ellen Little, was confirmed, the purchaser being William M. Mayers, of that township, and the price $1853.

The election of Rebecca E. Steinhour, widow of the late Levi S. Steinhour, to take $5000, under the provisions of the Act of April 1, 1909, rather than accept the terms of her husband's will was presented and the order made as asked.

George L. Rice was discharged as administrator of the estate of Felix A. Smith.

BITTEN BY DOG

Littlestown Has Scare. Offending Animal Quickly Killed.

Robert Mehning, a rural mail carrier from the Littlestown office, was bitten by a dog Saturday evening, while he was walking along one of the streets of that town. The dog was playing with several others—and snapped at Mr. Mehning as he passed. A flesh wound was made and a physician gave the injury immediate attention. The dog is said to have tried to bite several other persons. It was later shot. It is described as a large black and white spotted animal. The owner is not known.

TOWN INVENTOR SECURES PATENT

Appliance to Mend Steel Tapes, Designed to Save Many Hours' Work for Engineers, Product of Gettysburg Man's Mind.

Edgar M. Hewitt, of Gettysburg, has secured a patent for an invention which is likely to prove of great value to surveyors and civil engineers throughout the country. Mr. Hewitt for some years has been connected with this part of the National Park Commission work and it was in this occupation that he discovered the need which his invention is intended to meet.

The patent has been secured on a tape clamp and is designed for mending temporarily steel tapes which are widely used in all surveying work. They frequently tear, throwing out of employment, some times for an entire day, a gang of six or eight surveyors, who may have to return to their base until a new tape can be secured. Other efforts have been made to invent appliances which will mend quickly these tapes but none has yet been found which will hold.

Mr. Hewitt's appliance is a small brass contrivance made in the form of an ellipse. The broken pieces are inserted from either end and held tightly in position by a bolt which can be turned with an ordinary penknife. The contrivance is small and easily handled, and so made that the tape need be shortened as little as a tenth of an inch after which the work may proceed with a delay which need not exceed two minutes.

Thousands of steel tapes are used in this country every year and doubtless scores of them break while surveying gangs are at work. It is believed that there will be great demand for Mr. Hewitt's invention, after it is placed on the market. It is his intention rather to sell the patent rights, than to attempt to make the clamps himself.

The application for patent was pending since last July and notice of its having been granted has just now been received.

NEW CONCERN

Company to begin Operations near Dillsburg soon.

J. W. Fissel is successfully promoting a company of York, Harrisburg, Carlisle, Chambersburg and Philadelphia capitalists, which, it is stated, has acquired and will work upon an extensive scale the clay deposits of the Dogwood Run section, near Dillsburg. The clay of these deposits is of a fine quality and of a kind much used in the manufacture of paper. It is said that many of the companies owning or working clay deposits in Northern York county are being consolidated in the new company, which, as is claimed, has secured a large market for its proposed output. Operations are to be conducted on a scale more extensive than has even been applied by previous mining enterprises in this section.

TREES FOR ALL

Will be Given Free of Charge, it is Promised.

Over 5,000,000 seedling trees will be available for distribution throughout the State in reforestation work if the plans of the State Forestry Department mature. Governor Brumbaugh has signed a bill providing that young trees shall be distributed free to applicants who agree to look after them and preparations to ship them be made. Heretofore these young trees were sold at cost, but it was believed that better results could be obtained by making them free.

The trees are raised in the nurseries of the Forestry Department and under favorable conditions the 5,000,000 mark of last year will be exceeded.

SALARY RAISED

Mr. Steese Gets Increase under New Bill.

James A. Steese, of Mt. Holly Springs, well known in Gettysburg, gets an increase in his salary from $2000 to $3500 a year as chief clerk of the State Department of Labor and Industry. The increase is made under the provisions of Senator Gerberich's bill which has received the signature of Governor Brumbaugh.

WOULD SECURE FARM ADVISER

Take Action toward Getting Expert to Devote his Entire Time to Adams County Farmers. Federal Appropriation Made.

To take preliminary steps looking toward the advisability of securing a county agriculturist who will devote all of his time to answering calls and giving help to the farmers of Adams County, a committee was appointed at Saturday afternoon's meeting of the Boys' and Girls' Agricultural and Domestic Science Leagues, held in County Superintendent Roth's office. The committee is composed of Daniel M. Hoffman, P. Curtis Sowers, and C. J. Tyson.

At the present time there are seventeen counties in Pennsylvania which have these officials. They are provided for under the Smith-Lever Federal Act which appropriates money to the various state colleges throughout the country to carry on this work. Pennsylvania State College supplies the advisers for this state, paying a portion of their expenses, the balance being met by the county in which they are located.

Prior to the act becoming effective twelve of the Pennsylvania counties had such advisers, but five more were added this year during which the additional money became available.

The men appointed spend their entire time in the county which they serve. They have regular established offices and are at the call of individual farmers or the various rural organizations, granges, fruit growers' associations, boys' and girls' agricultural leagues, and other similar organizations. The men are all experts and their services and advice have proved of inestimable value to the localities in which they have been stationed.

Feeling that Adams County should take some steps looking toward securing this service here the committee was appointed to investigate ways and means of getting such an adviser. The cost to the county served is between $1000 and $1500.

The advisers of the Boys' and Girls' Agricultural and Domestic Science Leagues determined Saturday to conduct the corn and potato contests under the same rules and with the same prizes as last year. A meeting will be held on Saturday, May 8, for arranging for the domestic science work.

ANNUAL BALLOT

Emmitsburg to Elect Officials on May 3.

The annual election of Emmitsburg will be held on Monday, May 3, when a burgess and one commissioner, who serves for three years, will be chosen. The present burgess of Emmitsburg is John A. W. Matthews and the retiring commissioner, Harry C. Harner. At a meeting of the citizens at Firemen's Hall Thursday night the retired officials were nominated as candidates for re-election. Whether this will be the only ticket in the field is not yet certain although so far nothing has developed along this line. There are three commissioners in Emmitsburg, whose term of office is three years.

ORCHARDS IN BLOOM

In Several Days Fruit Belt will be Beautiful Scene.

Gettysburg people, and persons generally who reside in this neighborhood, delight each year to visit the fruit belt when the trees are in bloom. The county apple growers say that the latter part of this week and the beginning of next will be the best time to see the trees as the blossoms will then be fully open. The cherry, plum, peach, and early apple trees are now in bloom and the latter part of the week will see practically all the orchards at their best.

CHILD KILLED IN FALL FROM CRIB

Little Tot Thrown to Floor when Crib Tilts. Neck Broken and Death Results at once. Found by his Mother.

With his neck broken, the lifeless body of Raymond Henry Laughman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Laughman, of Orrtanna, was found on the floor of a bed room Saturday afternoon. The child was about one year old.

Mrs. Laughman had put her two children to sleep about one o'clock and had then gone downstairs to do some work. About half past three she went up again to attend to the children and was horrified to find the younger one lying on the floor. When she picked it up she found its body cold in death. In one little hand was clutched a key, which it is believed caused the sad accident.

The cradle—one of the old fashioned kind with rockers—had been placed not far from a door, and it is believed that the child was attracted by the bright key and tried to get it, with the result that the cradle tilted and threw him headfirst to the floor. A physician, who was summoned, found that the neck had been broken. The parents and the other child survive.

The funeral was held this morning at eight o'clock from the house. Interment was made in Flohr's cemetery.

WON FROM STATE

Gettysburg Team made Notable Record on Trip.

With an unbroken string of victories the college base ball team returned home on Sunday evening, Saturday they had defeated State College 5 to 1 and in the evening the students here paraded and visited the homes of various professors where they called for speeches.

State is recognized to have one of the best teams in Pennsylvania but Howard held them to four hits and his teammates helped along by batting out a victory. McKee's two triples featured the stick work of the Gettysburg nine. A trip will be taken this week, playing Lehigh, Muhlenberg, and Albright; while Villanova will appear on Nixon Field next Saturday.

The second team defeated Blue Ridge College on Nixon Field Saturday afternoon in a ten inning contest 6 to 5, while the High School defeated Prep 11 to 7.

The relay team took fourth place in their event on Franklin Field Saturday, Dickinson taking first; Catholic University second; and Manhattan third.

TWENTY THREE DEER ARE SEEN

Two Herds Wander about Near Caledonia and are not Frightened. Continue to Find Wounded Does, Victims of the Dogs.

Deer are unusually plentiful on the South Mountain foothills now. Saturday two herds with a total of twenty-three animals roamed near Caledonia park. Wednesday evening a herd of eleven grazed for a long time on the peeping oats in the cultivated field in the rear of Graeffenburg Inn.

Friday Forest Rangers Thomas and Stull found lying against brushwood in Carbaugh Run east of the Shepard restaurant a dead doe. The body was partially decomposed. It had washed down from the upper waters. The carcass showed it had been attacked and bitten by dogs and in seeking shelter in the waters had died from exhaustion or drowning.

Saturday morning another dead doe was found on driftwood in the Conococheague within the Caledonia park limits, near the Rush Dittman cottage. It, too, had taken to the water for its own safety, torn and driven by dogs. It had died there in torture within the past week.

The people in the neighborhood of Caledonia are using every available means to protect the deer from marauding dogs but have not been entirely successful.

FURIOUS BATTLE RAGING AT YPRES

Hill No. 60 is Still Held by the Allies.

THE LOSSES ARE ENORMOUS

British and French Gain Upper Hand After Checking Onslaught Intended to Put Invaders in Touch of Belgian City.

London, April 26.—A battle on a huge scale rages northeast and north of Ypres, with the British and French having gained the upper hand over the Germans in the simultaneous aggressive maneuvers launched by the opposing forces.

The conflict has developed its greatest severity near the villages of St. Julien and Kerselaere, where the Germans have been defeated in a supreme effort to get within striking distance of Ypres.

The left of the allied line on this battlefield, made up of French troops, has driven the Germans to the north along the banks of the Yser canal, thus threatening to cut their firing line in two near Bixchoote. The Kaiser's forces have failed to check this advance of the French in spite of a most desperate resistance.

While the fighting in progress is of the most desperate character, with enormous losses on both sides, the allies have brought the Kaiser's great maneuver to surround Ypres to a halt on positions east of the Yser canal. This success is of inestimable importance, as a foothold west of the canal would have enabled the Germans to attack the defenses of Ypres from three sides.

Germans Still Using Gas Bombs.

Paris, April 26.—The French war office statement says:

"In Belgium our counter attacks continued successfully in close co-operation with our allies. The Germans, who attacked us with two army corps, continued to employ asphyxiating gases. Some of their projectiles that did not explode were found to contain a large quantity of these gases."

"We have made considerable progress toward the north, on the right bank of the Yser canal. The British troops have on our right maintained all their positions."

"In the Argonne we took a German trench, captured two machine guns and made some prisoners. The action was a local one, although it was of the most violent character."

"On the heights of the Meuse at the Cologne trench, the Germans made an attack with an entire division on a front of one kilometer (about two-thirds of a mile). At first they compelled our first line to give way, but we subsequently regained this position by a counter attack."

German Statement on Ypres Battle.

Berlin, April 26.—The German army headquarters gave out the following report:

"In the western theater of war we obtained further results at Ypres. The ground captured on April 23 north of Ypres was still retained in spite of the attacks of the enemy. Further east we continued our attack and took by storm the Salart farm, southwest of St. Julien, as well as the villages of St. Julien and Kerselaere, and advanced victoriously toward Grafenstapel. During these engagements about 1000 Englishmen were taken prisoners and several machine guns were captured."

"A British counter attack against our positions west of St. Julien was repulsed, with very heavy loss to the enemy."

"West of Wiel attempts of the British to make an attack were quenched at the very start by the fire of our artillery."

"In the Argonne we repulsed an attack by two French battalions north of Four de Paris."

"In the Meuse hills, southwest of Combrès, the French suffered a heavy defeat."

Food Riots in Trieste Serious.

Rome, April 26.—The food riots at Trieste have become so serious that the mayor has authorized the free distribution of army stores. This concession partially satisfied the crowds, but there was a repetition of the rioting as soon as the storehouse doors were closed and the distribution was stopped.

Italy Detains Austrian Goods.

Rome, April 26.—The Naples police have discovered a cargo of army uniform materials, boots and foodstuffs consigned to Austrian shippers, says a dispatch. The material had been cunningly concealed in wine barrels. Three hundred other barrels, supposed to contain resin from the United States, were found to be filled with rubber valued at over $500,000.

British Battleship Hit Three Times.

Malta, April 26.—The British battleship Triumph has been hit three times by shells from the batteries on the Dardanelles while bombarding the Gallipoli peninsula. The damage done to the vessel was slight. Two members of her crew were wounded.

Admiral in Command of the British Home Fleet.

GERMAN FLEET IS EAGER FOR BATTLE

Cruising in North Sea Seeking British Armada.

London, April 26.—In a dispatch from Copenhagen, the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says that leading German papers, including the Tages Zeitung and Vossische Zeitung, declare that the German fleet is willing to accept battle in the North Sea.

The entire German fleet, the papers declare, has several times cruised over the North Sea, vainly seeking the British fleet.

The Vossische Zeitung says the Norwegian steamship Feodin met the German fleet last Sunday off Helgoland. The German commander told the captain of the Feodin that the German fleet had one desire only, to engage the British fleet, and he hoped the British might be found.

F. W. SEWARD DIES

Son of Lincoln's Secretary of State Was Attacked by Booth's Ally.

Montrose, N. Y., April 26.—Frederick W. Seward, assistant secretary of state in the cabinets of Presidents Lincoln, Johnson and Hayes, and a son of the late Secretary of State William H. Seward, died here in his eighty-fifth year.

Mr. Seward was closely associated with some of the gravest events in the nation's history. It was he who was sent on that memorable mission from Washington to Philadelphia to warn President Lincoln that his life was in danger if he followed his itinerary through Baltimore.

Four years later he figured in another stirring incident after the assassination of President Lincoln. He was at his father's bedside when Payne, one of Booth's accomplices, pretending to be a messenger with medicine for Secretary Seward, suddenly drew a navy revolver and beat back Frederick Seward into unconsciousness. Then, dashing into the sick room, Payne slashed Secretary Seward many times. Many days elapsed before the Searwards recovered. Payne was captured and executed with others involved in the plot.

TURKS MASSACRE VILLAGES

Atrocities in Armenia Increasing—Appeal to Wilson.

Petrograd, April 26.—A Tiflis dispatch says that refugees from Turkish Transcaucasia who have reached the Russian line report that the massacre of Armenians by Mohammedans is being continued on an even greater scale.

They say that all the inhabitants of the villages near Van, in Armenia, Asiatic Turkey, have been put to death.

On behalf of massacres at Erzerum, Berjan and Zeitun, and of the conditions at Van, the Catholics, head of the Armenian church at Etchmiadzin, near Erivan, cabled to President Wilson an appeal to the people of the United States on behalf of the Armenians.

Arrest Scores For Watery Milk.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 26.—Scores of arrests for violation of the state laws governing standards of milk and cream have been ordered by the state dairy and food commissioner this week upon analyses of samples made in twenty counties. The samples taken have shown too much water.

To Open Lebanon Armory Bids.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 26.—The state armory board will open bids for the construction of the new armory at Lebanon on May 11, and that is all that will be done until the appropriation bill reported for $350,000 for the construction program for the next two years is acted upon.

NAVY AT BEST SAYS DANIELS

Recruited to Full Strength and New Vessels Built.

SOME BIG GUNS DEVELOPED

Secretary Recounts Results of Efforts to Increase Efficiency of Sea Fighting Force.

Washington, April 26.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels made public a letter written by him to Harry A. Garfield, the president of Williams college, in which he told of the progress of the United States navy and its preparedness.

Doctor Garfield had asked official information with which to refute the arguments of Representative A. P. Gardner.

Secretary Daniels said there were 225 vessels fully commissioned in active service. In addition, the reserve vessels of various types, capable of rendering service in war, number 101. Under construction and authorize are 77 vessels, 9 dreadnoughts, 23 destroyers, 38 submarines and auxiliaries. In 1913 there were 54 vessels, 5 dreadnoughts, 14 destroyers, 23 submarines, 3 gunboats and 9 auxiliaries. All the vessels, those in active service and in reserve, are supplied with munitions of war. In the last two years the number of mines on hand and in process of construction has increased 244 per cent.

As to the personnel, Secretary Daniels said the number had increased 12 per cent in the last year. There are 4355 men in the line and 53,171 enlisted men. The navy is today recruited to the maximum strength allowed by law.

Touching upon equipment and preparation for military emergencies, Secretary Daniels said:

"In the last two years of the Taft administration congress authorized the construction of two dreadnoughts to cost about $13,000,000 each. During the first two years of the Wilson administration, upon my recommendation, congress authorized the construction of five dreadnoughts to cost about $14,000,000 each. Stated in dollars, the Wilson administration, in its first two years, authorized $70,000,000 to be spent on the chief fighting force of the navy."

"A statement has been put in circulation that the navy is not making adequate provision to supply itself with torpedoes. We either have on hand or have placed orders for all the torpedoes the general board prescribes. For every 100 torpedoes that the department had on hand in March, 1913, ninety-six more are completed or in course of manufacture. Therefore, the supply will be almost doubled."

"The bureau of ordnance has developed a 14-inch gun that will shoot farther, shoot straighter and hit harder than any gun now in use or known to be designed by a foreign country."

FELL ON KNIFE: THROAT CUT

Woman Walks 500 Yards in a Dying Condition.

Washington, Pa., April 26.—Falling on a butcher knife she held in her hand when she tripped while crawling through a fence, Mrs. Elizabeth Gamble, the wife of H. D. Gamble, cut her own throat, from which she died in a hospital. All the arteries on the left side of her throat were severed.

Mrs. Gamble had been gathering "greens" and was returning home. She weighed 250 pounds, and it is supposed that a fence rail broke beneath her weight.

After being injured she walked 500 yards with the knife sticking in her throat, falling unconscious in her own doorway.

IMPEACH A JAILED MAYOR

Terre Haute Councilmen Find Him Guilty of Many Things.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 26.—Mayor Donn M. Roberts, recently found guilty with twenty-seven other Terre Hauteans of conspiracy to corrupt the election here on Nov. 3, 1914, was impeached by city council by a vote of 7 to 3.

Roberts was not present at the trial, being confined in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan., serving a six year sentence fixed by Federal Judge Anderson at Indianapolis.

Make Record Shipment of Eggs.

York, Pa., April 26.—A record shipment of eggs was made from Turn pike, over the Stewartstown railroad, when two merchants, H. W. Rehmer, of that place, and M. C. Kautz, of New Market, Md., shipped 5700 dozen of eggs to dealers in Philadelphia. This is the largest shipment of eggs ever made in that section.

FAMINE DRIVES MANY TO SUICIDE

Desperate Chinese Eat Roots and Leaves.

Washington, April 26.—Many are starving to death, others are committing suicide to escape the terrors of hunger and thousands are on the verge of starvation in the province of Szechuan, China, because of famine, according to mail advices to the state department received from E. Carleton Baker, American consul at Chungking.

"Many of the poorer people are already dying and others are on the verge of starvation," said the memorandum to the state department. "The price of rice has more than doubled. Some of the people are so desperate that they are eating roots and bark from the trees and even clay, while others are committing suicide to escape the terrors of starvation."

"The famine is due to a protracted drought, particularly in the region of Fuchow and Chungchow, and it is not thought that conditions will improve until the next harvest in the late summer."

Mr. and Mrs. William Albright, entertained the following Hanover people on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Malaun and children, Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander and son, Mr. and Mrs. D. Wise, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Bowersox and daughter, and S. M. Freeman, Washington.

Joseph P. Tumulty, of Washington, secretary to the President, brought a party of friends to Gettysburg Saturday afternoon. They took supper at the Eagle.

Major James R. Brady, of Washington, was in Gettysburg Saturday and made the customary inspection at the National Cemetery.

Mrs. Geiselman and Mrs. Dardorf have returned from Harrisburg with their daughters who underwent operations for the removal of adenoids. Dr. H. M. Hartman assisted the Harrisburg surgeons.

CUPID MART OPEN IN SPITE OF WAR

Berlin Finds Little Change In Matrimonial Ads.

OFFERS FROM MEN FEWER.

And Women, Now That Their Choice
Is More Restricted, Are Growing Less Particular and Exact in Their Requirements For Eligible Husbands, and That Is All.

The Deutsche Tageszeitung has discovered that wife hunting by advertising has been little affected by the war.
"The war has changed nothing in Berlin. It is 'as you were' for us,"
says the Tageszeitung, and adds:

"More's the pity. A Sunday excursion
through the Blessed Fields of a Sunday newspaper shows us how very
the certain bad customs are affected by the war. The innocent reader must suffer with anxiety the spring boom in the marriage advertisement market.
"There is no shame about the business. It is open and barefaced and seems to be taken as a matter of course that matrimony should be openly discussed as a pure question of market value."

They Fill a Column.

The ordinary advertisement—and they fill a column or more of some German papers—is stereotyped after this fashion:

Property company official, tall, distinguished in appearance, forty-two years old, seeks suitable companion for life;
must have large fortune, no anonymous
communications and no agents.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt published a column of these in a recent issue. In papers where the marriage advertisements do not run to a column
they appear under "Unclassified Advertisements."

The war has made a considerable difference in their character, and the number of girls or women with considerable fortunes seeking suitable mates has greatly increased. The "offers"
from young men have decreased.

The ladies are getting less particular in their requirements. A girl with $25,000 would hardly have advertised before the war for anything less than an officer of the army or navy or a civil official. Now she will accept what is technically described as a "better gentleman" if his "social and financial position" is assured.

But the ladies in Germany have now to devise more striking appeals if they wish to be distinguished from the rank.
Here is a sample quoted by the Tages-
zeitung:

Seeks Her Soul Mate.

I call you, you who belong to me in the world. You, too, are seeking in marriage a sanctuary. You expect to find in your wife, as I in my husband, the best thing in life. Here I am.

Under this advertisement, in much smaller type, follows the important part of it:

It is true I am forty-two years old, but presently I shall have a considerable fortune.

However, this type of advertisement
is not altogether confined to the fair
sex. Here is an appeal on the same lines from a man:

I seek you, my friend and my wife! Simple and sunny nature; you will have the ordinary humbug of life; you will love nature and all that is natural; all that I am and desire will give purpose to your existence.

This prodigy only requires a few
thousands with his wife, but the explanation follows in the usual small print:

I cannot say I am without blemish, but still—
"Shop soiled, in fact, and going at a great reduction," as the Deutsche Tageszeitung observes.

Some of the advertisements are undoubtedly impudent. Here is a fair specimen:

Wanted—Noble, Christian young lady to provide young academician with opportunity to study music; marriage included.
The marriage column is in almost all cases followed by a shy selection of private detective advertisements. Here
—and so, lately of the police force, undertakes to discover if the goods are up to sample and to detect the shop soiled gentleman who has not the honesty to describe himself as such or,
as the Tageszeitung puts it, "to inspect the teeth of the young lady."

SEES MYSTIC SIGNS IN SKY.

Abbe Moreux Denies They Have Anything to Do With War.

Abbe Moreux, director of the observatory at Bourges, France, says that his attention has been called every few days lately to singular phenomena in the sky, such as halos, crowns and luminous crosses. Many devout persons see in the letter manifestations,
he says, a mystic sign of approaching victory.

These crosses, Abbe Moreux says,
are reflections produced by humidity
in the atmosphere and probably are due to depressions originating over the north Atlantic. He asserts that they have no connection with the artillery firing.

Renew Old Capitol Steps.

Stone masons have begun tearing up the historic steps leading to the main entrance of the capitol at Washington.
The sandstone had failed to endure
the grind of footsteps during a century and will make way for new marble slabs.

Not in All Respects.

"I hear that they belong to the early settlers." "Well, you wouldn't think so if you could see the bill collectors
climbing their front steps."—Judge.

SYNOPSIS.

Christopher Bellew, a tenderfoot, starts for the Klondike in a gold rush and pluckily works at the back breaking toll of packing freight.

He meets a beautiful girl, Joy Gastell, deserts his own party, and he and Shorty, a new acquaintance, hire out to two wealthy prospectors. Joy has nicknamed him "Smoke."

Smoke and Shorty befriend a man named Breck and nearly perish in attempting to cross Lake Lebarge because of the uselessness of their employers.

Smoke and Shorty take command by force and get through to Dawson City, where they are discovered. On Breck's tip they stampede for Squaw Creek.

They overtake Joy Gastell and her father. To help the Sea Lion crowd Joy treacherously leads them away from Squaw Creek.

Smoke saves the girl's feet from freezing. He and Shorty by mistake jump a miner's claim and lose it. Then Smoke finds Surprise lake, the bottom of which is covered with gold.

Smoke is shot at, witnesses the murder of a miner by the unknown marksmen and is arrested for murder himself.

Breck shows a Surprise lake nugget. The impromptu court is stampeded, and Smoke's life is saved. Smoke wins money at roulette.

He continues to win, and the gamblers buy him off. His system was based on the discovery that the roulette wheel was warped.

Prompted by Joy Gastell, Smoke enters a race for a million dollar claim against some of the best dog mushers.

At a critical moment Joy supplies Smoke with a fresh dog team, and he runs a dead heat with Big Olaf for the claim.

Smoke goes to Surprise lake. He falls into a crevasse in a glacier, and a miner, Carson, makes heroic efforts to rescue him.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Knife and the Rope.

SEVERAL minutes passed, in which they took stock of the situation and made rapid strides in learning the art of sticking to wet and slippery ice. The little man was the first to speak.

"Gee!" he said and a minute later: "If you can dig in for a moment and slack on the rope I can turn over. Try it."

Smoke made the effort, then rested on the rope again. "I can do it," he said. "Tell me when you're ready, and be quick."

"About three feet down is holding for my heels," Carson said. "It won't take a moment. Are you ready?"

"Go on!"

It was hard work to slide down a yard, turn over and sit up. But it was even harder for Smoke to remain flattened and maintain a position that from instant to instant made a greater call upon his muscles. As it was, he could feel the almost perceptible beginning of the slip when the rope tightened, and he looked up into his companion's face. Smoke noted the yellow pallor of sun tan, forsaken by the blood, and wondered what his own complexion was like. But when he saw Carson, with shaking fingers, fumble for his sheath knife he decided the end had come. The man was in a funk and was going to cut the rope.

"Don't mind me, man," the little man chattered. "I ain't scared. It's only my nerves, gosh damn them. I'll b-b-be all right in a minute."

And Smoke watched him, doubled over, his shoulders between his knees, shivering and awkward, holding a slight tension on the rope with one hand, while with the other he hacked and gouged holes in the ice.

"Carson," he breathed up to him. "You're some bear, some bear."

The answering grin was ghastly and pathetic. "I never could stand height," Carson confessed. "It always did get me. Do you mind if I stop a minute and clear my head? Then I'll make those hell holes deeper so I can heave you up."

Smoke's heart warmed. "Look here, Carson; the thing for you to do is to cut the rope. You can never get me up, and there's no use both of us being lost. You can make it out with your knife."

"You shut up!" was the hurt retort. "Who's running this?"

And Smoke could not help but see that anger was a good restorative for the other's nerves. As for himself, it was the more nerve racking strain, lying plastered against the ice with nothing to do but strive to stick on.

A groan and a quick cry of "Hold on!" warned him. With face pressed against the ice he made a supreme sticking effort, felt the rope slacken and knew Carson was slipping toward him. He did not dare look up until he felt the rope tighten and knew the other had again come to rest.

"Gee, that was a near go!" Carson chattered. "I came down over a yard. Now, you wait. I've got to dig new holds."

Holding the few pounds of strain necessary for Smoke with his left hand, the little man jabbed and chopped at the ice with his right. Ten minutes of this passed.

"Now, I'll tell you what I've done," Carson called down. "I've made heel holds and hand holds for you along side of me. I'm going to heave the rope in slow and easy, and you just come along sticking and not too fast. I'll tell you what, first of all. I'll take you on the rope, and you worry out of that pack. Get me?"

Smoke nodded, and with infinite care unbuckled his pack straps. With a wriggle of the shoulders he dislodged the pack, and Carson saw it slide over the bulge and out of sight.

"Now, I'm going to ditch mine," he called down. "You just take it easy and wait."

Five minutes later the upward struggle began. Smoke, after drying his hands on the insides of his arm sleeves, clawed into the climb-bellied and clung and stuck and plastered—sustained and helped by the pull of the rope. Alone, he could not have advanced.

A third of the way up, where the pitch was steeper and the ice less eroded, he felt the strain on the rope decreasing. He moved slower and slower. There was no place to stop and remain. His most desperate effort could not prevent the stop, and he could feel the down-slip beginning.

"I'm going," he called up.

"So am I," was the reply, gritted through Carson's teeth.

"Then ease loose."

Smoke felt the rope tauten in a futile effort; then the pace quickened, and as he went past his previous lodgment and over the bulge the last glimpse he caught of Carson he was turned over, with madly moving hands and feet striving to overcome the downward draw.

To Smoke's surprise, as he went over the bulge, there was no sheer fall. The rope restrained him as he slid down a steeper pitch, which quickly eased until he came to a halt in another niche on the verge of another bulge. Carson was now out of sight, ensconced in the place previously occupied by Smoke.

"Gee!" he could hear Carson shiver. "Gee!"

An interval of quiet followed, and then Smoke could feel the rope agitated.

"What are you doing?" he called up. "Making more hand and foot holds."

"You just wait. I'll have you up here in a jiffy. Don't mind the way I talk. I'm just excited."

"You're holding me by main strength," Smoke argued. "Soon or late, with the ice melting, you'll slip down after me. The thing for you to do is to ease loose. Hear me? There's no use both of us going. Get that? You're the biggest little man in creation, but you've done your best. You cut loose!"

"You shut up! I'm going to make hoies this time deep enough to haul up a span of horses."

Several silent minutes passed. Smoke could hear the metallic strike and hack of the knife, and occasionally dribbles of ice slid over the bulge and came down to him. Thirsty, clinging on hand and foot, he caught the fragments in his mouth and melted them to water, which he swallowed.

He heard a gasp that slid into a groan of despair and felt a slackening of the rope that made him claw. Immediately the rope tightened again. Straining his eyes in an upward look along the steep slope, he stared a moment, then saw the knife, pointed straight down, then saw the knife, pointed straight down, then saw the knife, pointed straight down.

"I'm a slob!" came the wail down the crevasse.

"Cheer up, I've got it!" Smoke answered.

"Stay! Wait! I've got a lot of string in my pocket. I'll drop it down to you, and you send the knife up."

Smoke made no reply. He was battling with a sudden rush of thought.

"Hey, you! Here comes the string. Tell me when you've got it."

A small pocket-knife weighted on the string slid down the ice. Smoke got it, opened the larger blade by a quick effort of his teeth and one hand and made sure that the blade was sharp. Then he tied the sheath knife to the end of the string.

"Haul away!" he called.

With strained eyes he saw the upward progress of the knife. But he saw more—a little man, afraid and indomitable, who shivered and chattered, whose head swam with giddiness and who mastered his qualms and distresses and played a hero's part. Here was a proper meat eater, eager with friendliness, generous to destruction, with a gift that shaking fear could not shake.

Then, too, he considered the situation cold bloodedly. There was no chance for two. Steadily they were sliding into the heart of the glacier, and it was his greater weight that was dragging the little man down. The little man could stick like a fly. Alone, he could save himself.

"Bully for us!" came the voice from above, down and across the bridge of ice. Now we'll get out of here in two shakes."

The awful struggle for good cheer and hope in Carson's voice decided Smoke.

"Listen to me," he said steadily, vainly striving to shake the vision of Joy Gastell's face from his brain. "I sent that knife up for you to get out with. Get that? I'm going to chop loose with the jackknife. It's one or both of us. Get that?"

"Wait! For God's sake, wait!" Carson screamed down. "You can't do that! Give me a chance to get you out. Be calm and home. We'll make the turn. You'll see. I'm going to dig holes that'll lift a house and barn."

Smoke made no reply. Slowly and gently, fascinated by the sight, he

"Wait! For God's sake, wait!"

cut with the knife until one of the three strands popped and parted.

"What are you doing?" Carson cried desperately. "If you cut I'll never forgive you—never. I tell you it's two or nothing. We're going to get out. Wait! For God's sake!"

And Smoke, staring at the parted strand, five inches before his eyes, knew fear in all its weakness. He did not want to die. He recoiled from the shimmering abyss beneath him, and his panic brain urged all the preposterous optimism of delay. It was fear that prompted him to compromise.

"All right," he called up. "I'll wait. Do your best. But I tell you, Carson, if we both start slipping again I'm going to cut."

"Huh! Forget it. When we start, old horse, we start up. I'm a porous plaster. I could stick here if it was twice as steep. I'm getting a sizable hole for one heel already. Now, you hush, and let me work."

A gasp and a groan and an abrupt slackening of the rope warned him. He began to slip. The movement was very slow. The rope tightened loyally, but he continued to slip. Carson could not hold him and was slipping with him. The digging toe of his farther extended foot encountered vacancy, and he knew that it was over the slantaway fall. And he knew, too, that in another moment his falling body would jerk Carson's after it.

Blindly, desperately, all the vitality and life love of him beaten down in a flashing instant by a shuddering perception of right and wrong, he brought the knife edge across the rope, saw the strands part, felt himself slide more rapidly and then fall.

What happened then he did not know. He was not unconscious, but it happened too quickly, and it was unexpected. Instead of falling to his death his feet almost immediately struck in water, and he sat violently down in water that splashed coolly on his face.

His first impression was that the crevasse was shallower than he had imagined and that he had safely fetched bottom. But of this he was quickly disabused. The opposite wall was a dozen feet away. He lay in a basin formed in an outflow of the ice wall by melting water that dribbled and trickled over the bulge above and fell sheer down a distance of a dozen feet. This had hollowed out the basin.

Where he sat the water was two feet deep, and it was flush with the rim. He peered over the rim and looked down the narrow chasm hundreds of feet to the torrent foam foamed along the bottom.

"Oh, why did you?" he heard a wail from above.

"Listen!" he called up. "I'm perfectly safe, sitting in a pool of water up to my neck. And here's both our packs. I'm going to sit on them. There's room for half a dozen here. If you slip stick close and you'll land in the meantime you hike up and get out. Go to the cabin. Somebody's there. I saw the smoke. Get a rope or anything that will make rope, and come back and fish for me."

"Honest?" came Carson's incredulous voice.

"Cross my heart and hope to die. Now, get a huckle on or I'll catch my death of cold."

Smoke kept himself warm by kicking a channel through the rim with the heel of his shoe. By the time he had drained off the last of the water a call from Carson announced that he had reached the top.

After that Smoke occupied himself with drying his clothes. The late afternoon sun beat warmly in upon him and he wrung out his garments and spread them about him.

Two hours later, perched naked on the two packs, he heard a voice above that he could not fail to identify.

"Oh, Smoke! Smoke!"

"Hello, Joy Gastell!" he called back. "Where'd you drop from?"

"Are you hurt?"

"Not even a skin off."

"Father's paying the rope down now. Do you see it?"

"Yes, and I've got it," he answered. "Now, wait a couple of minutes, please."

"What's the matter?" came her anxious query after several minutes. "Oh, I know you're hurt."

"No, I'm not. I'm dressing."

"Dressing?"

"Yes. I've been in swimming. Now! Ready? Hoist away!"

He sent up the two packs on the first trip, was subsequently rebuked by Joy Gastell and on the second trip came up himself.

Joy Gastell looked at him with glowing eyes while her father and Carson were busy coiling the rope. "How could you cut loose in that splendid way?" she cried. "It was—it was glorious, that's all."

Smoke waved the compliment away with a deprecatory hand.

"I know all about it," she persisted. "Carson told me. You sacrificed yourself to save me."

"Nothing of the sort," Smoke lied. "I could see that swimming pool right under me all the time."

"I wish I was flat broke," he smiled up. "If ever I get out of being a millionaire this time I'll never be one again."

"It's all right," Smoke encouraged. "I've been over it before. Better let me try it first."

"And you forty pounds to the worse," the little man flashed back. "I'll be all right in a minute. I'm all right now," as his foot went out, this time to rest carefully and lightly, while the other foot was brought up and past.

Very gently and circumspectly he continued on his way until two-thirds of the distance was covered. Here he stopped to examine a depression he must cross, at the bottom of which was a fresh crack. Smoke, watching, saw him glance to the side and down into the crevasse itself and then begin a slight swaying.

"Keep your eyes up!" Smoke commanded sharply. "Now, go on!"

The little man obeyed nor faltered on the rest of the journey. The sun eroded slope of the farther edge of the crevasse was slippery, but not steep, and he worked his way up to a narrow ledge, faced about and sat down.

"Your turn," he called across. "But just keep a-coming, and don't look down. That's what got my goat. Just keep a-coming, that's all. And get a move on. It's almighty rotten."

Balancing his own stick horizontally, Smoke essayed the passage. That the bridge was on its last legs was patent. He felt a jar under foot, a slight movement of the mass and a heavier jar. This was followed by a single sharp crackle. Behind him he knew something was happening. If for no other reason he knew it by the strained, tense face of Carson. From beneath, thin and faint, came the murmur of running water, and Smoke's eyes involuntarily wandered to a glimpse of the shimmering depths. He jerked them back to the way before him.

Two-thirds over he came to the depression. The sharp edges of the crack, but slightly touched by the sun, showed how recent it was. His foot was lifted to make the step across when the crack began slowly widening, at the same time emitting numerous sharp snaps. He made the step quickly, increasing the stride of it, but the worn nails of his shoe skated on the farther slope of the depression. He fell on his face and without pause slipped down and into the crack, his legs hanging clear, his chest supported by the stick, which he had managed to twist crosswise as he fell.

His first sensation was the nausea caused by the sickening upheav of his pulse; his first idea was of surprise that he had fallen no farther. Behind him were crackling and jar and movement, to which the stick vibrated. From beneath, in the heart of the glacier, came the soft and hollow thunder of the dislodged masses striking bottom. And still the bridge, broken from its farthest support and ruptured in the middle, held, though the portion he had crossed tilted downward at a pitch of twenty degrees.

He could see Carson, perched on his ledge, his feet braced against the melting surface, swiftly receding the rope from his shoulders to his hand.

"Wait!" he cried. "Don't move, or the whole shooting match will come down!"

He calculated the distance with a quick glance, took the bandanna from his neck and tied it to the rope and increased the length by a second bandanna from his pocket. The rope, manufactured from sled lashings and short lengths of plaited rawhide knotted together, was both light and strong. The first cast was lucky as well as deft, and Smoke's fingers clutched it. He evidenced a hand over hand intention of crawling out of the crack. But Carson, who had refastened the rope around his own waist, stopped him.

"Make it fast around yourself as well," he ordered.

"If I go I'll take you with me," Smoke objected.

The little man became very peremptory.

"You shut up!" he ordered.

"If I ever start going!" Smoke began.

"Shut up! You ain't going to ever start going. Now do what I say. That's right—under the shoulders. Make it fast. Now start. Get a move on, but easy as you go. I'll take in the slack. You just keep a-coming. That's it. Easy, easy."

Smoke was still a dozen feet away when the final collapse of the bridge began. Without noise, but in a jerky way, it crumbled an increasing tilt.

"Quick!" Carson called, coiling in hand over hand on the slack of the rope which Smoke's rush gave him.

When the crash came Smoke's fingers were clawing into the hard face of the wall of the crevasse, while his body dragged back with the falling bridge. Carson, sitting up, feet wide apart and braced, was heaving on the rope. This effort swung Smoke in to the side of the wall, but it jerked Carson out of his niche. "Like a cat he faced about, clawing wildly for a hold on the ice and slipping down. Beneath him, with forty feet of taut rope between them, Smoke was clawing just as wildly, and ere the thunder from below announced the arrival of the bridge both men had come to rest. Carson had achieved this first, and the several pounds of pull he was able to put on the rope had helped to bring Smoke to a stop."

Each lay in a shallow niche, but Smoke's was so shallow that, tense with the strain of the flattening and sticking, nevertheless, he would have slid on had it not been for the slight assistance he took from the rope. He was on the verge of a bulge and could not see beneath him.

The Welcome

God spreads a carpet soft and green,
O'er which we pass;
A thick piled mat of jeweled shewn—
And that is grass.

Delightful music wows the ear;
The grass is stirred
Down to the heart of every spear—
Ah, that's a bird!

Clouds roll before a blue immense
That stretches high
And lends the soul exalted sense—
That scrolls the sky.

Green rollers flaunt their sparkling crests;
Their jubilee
Extols brave captains and their quests—
And that is sea.

New leaping grass, the feathery flute,
The sapling ring,
The sea's full voiced, profound salute—
Ah, this is spring!

URGES HERO COLONIES FOR GERMAN MAIMED.

Girls Will Be Glad to Be Soldiers' Wives, Says Kersten.

A suggestion for the establishment of a "hero colony" near the famous old Porta school in South Prussia, of which he is an alumnus, is being considered by the German chancellor, Von Bethman-Hollweg. The idea is that men maimed and crippled in the war may take up their life there.

The originator of the plan is Paul Kersten, head of a big factory in Bad Koesen. He believes that there will be thousands of patriotic girls and widows of soldiers who, when peace is concluded, will be glad to be married to the men who have been injured and who otherwise would gravitate into soldiers' homes.

Kersten feels that men in soldiers' homes soon come to feel that they are useless and in the way, whereas they can continue a useful and happy existence if they have their own homes and wives to help care for them. He believes that the loss of an eye or a leg is not a defect that in any way affects future generations.

If injured soldiers can marry and live in colonies instead of in homes by themselves he thinks that the birth rate will show some of the increase that is to be necessary after the war. The proposal is receiving warm approval in Germany. It is possible several such colonies will be formed.

RAIDER'S MASCOTS EATEN.

Officers of Wilhelm Had Pigs Killed For Odor of Real Raod.

Officers on the German raider Kronprinz Wilhelm, now at Newport News, Va., say that during their 255 days at sea they grew so tired of canned beef they ordered the butcher to kill the ship's mascots, Red, White and Black, three little pigs, solely for the sake of the comfort of having the odor of a roast come up from the galley. The pigs, taken from the French steamer Guadaloupe, had been given the run of the deck by the crew, with whom they had become pets.

The men woefully picked out the three best looking cats from among the twenty aboard and named them Red, White and Black.

CHILD'S COFFIN FOR PET DOG.

Lot Bought in Cemetery and Auto Takes Body to Grave.

Having attained the age of twelve years, illness overtook Punch, a French bulldog which had been born in the family of George L. Mower, General Electric company engineer, of Pittsfield, Mass., and Punch had to be chloroformed.

Before leaving for Boston to escape the ordeal Mrs. Mower ordered a child's coffin lined with white satin and obtained a lot in the cemetery of the Home For Little Wanderers, in Dalton. An automobile was engaged to carry the body to the graveyard.

A marble stone is to be placed over the grave.

VICTORIA CROSSES WON WITH HAND GRENADES.

Three Awarded to British Soldiers For Bravery With Missiles.

The important part that hand grenades are playing in the western campaign is made evident by the fact that of the last five Victoria crosses awarded by King George three were for "conspicuous bravery" displayed in the use of these missiles.

Private Edward Barber of the First battalion of the Grenadier guards at Neuve Chapelle ran in front of his grenade company and threw bombs on the enemy with such effect that a very great number of them at once surrendered," says the British report making the awards.

"When the grenade party reached Barber," the report continues, "they found him quite alone and unsupported and with the enemy surrendering all about him."

Lance Corporal Fuller of the Grenadier guards won his cross in the same battle.

"Seeing a party of the enemy endeavoring to escape along a communication trench," the report says, "Corporal Fuller ran quite alone toward them and killed the leading man with a bomb. The remainder of the men, nearly fifty, finding no means of evading his bombs, surrendered to him."

Lieutenant Cyril Gordon Martin, who already possessed the distinguished service order medal, was in command of a grenade throwing party of six and, although wounded, led his party into the enemy's trenches and held back their re-enforcements over two hours."

Private May of the Scottish rifles and Private Tollerton of the Cameron highlanders received crosses for rescuing wounded men under rifle fire.

"Private Tollerton," according to the report, "carried a wounded officer while under a heavy fire to a place of greater safety, although wounded himself. He then struggled back into the firing line and remained there until his battalion retired, when he returned to the wounded officer and lay beside him for three days until both were rescued."

WEARS LIVE CANARY IN HAT.

Girl's Daring Millinery Sets Crowds Agape In New York.

A live canary as part of a girl's hat brought gasps of surprise from the crowds in the first Sunday fashion parade the weather permitted on Fifth avenue, New York. The canary hopped and chirped in a gauze case forming the crown of the hat.

The wearer was a young actress, who recently sued a Boston millionaire for breach of promise of marriage. She predicted that live birds will be a feature of the new spring styles in millinery.

Man's Selfishness.

An aged German and his wife were much given to quarreling. One day, after a particularly unpleasant scene, the old woman remarked, with a sigh: "Vell, I wish I was in heaven."

"I wish I was in a beer-garden!" shouted her husband. "Ach, ja," cried the old wife, "always you try to pick out the best for yourself!"

'QUAKE ROCKS ITALIAN CITY

Avezzano Again Scene of Earth
Rumbling.

DAMAGE NOT YET KNOWN

Shock Lasted Many Seconds and People Were Panic-Stricken—Historic Castle Razed.

Avezzano, Italy, April 26.—Hardly recovered from the terrible effects of the great earthquake in this section of the country in January, when more than 35,000 persons lost their lives, thousands of others were injured and tremendous property damage wrought,
the people in this section of the province were panic stricken by another earthquake.

This earth shock was accompanied by severe rumblings which lasted for many seconds. The shock was felt in all parts of the province, although the center appeared to be converged at Tagliacozzo, a city about twenty miles southwest of Avezzano, which suffered severely from the last earthquake, when a large proportion of the population was killed.

Among the buildings damaged is reported to have been one of the most historic castles in Italy, the walls of which shook, tottered and fell, while the walls of other edifices also were damaged.

The entire extent of the damage is not known at present, but the meager reports received have caused the authorities to send all available assistance to the stricken people.

The inhabitants of this part of the country are showing the greatest fear over the earthquake, even though at present it does not seem to approach anything of the magnitude of that of last January. In fact, the country is still covered with ruins of the last earthquake series, many of the cities
being in a state of wreck.

Thousands of houses were destroyed
at that time, and most of those who lost their lives were crushed beneath heavy stones and the solid masonry, which crumbled to pieces from the effect of the earth tremors. The great damage probably was caused in Avezzano, where hundreds of families were wiped out and only the buildings that were of the most modern construction were left standing.

PEARY PARTY VISITS MINES

Greatly Interested in Daylight Stripping of Coal.

Pottsville, Pa., April 26.—Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the North Pole; Dr. David White, chief geologist of the United States geological survey, and thirty other scientists from many states made an inspection of the lower anthracite coal belt, taking particular interest in the daylight mining of hard coal, made possible by stripping the earth's surface from coal veins.

The vast new operations on the lands of the Girard estate were also inspected by the visitors.

The visitors were entertained by Captain Baird Halberstadt at the Pottsville club, and scores of citizens attended the reception.

TOOK DRINK OF WATER: SHOT

Man Walks Ten Miles With Wound
In His Breast.

Unlontown, Pa., April 26.—With a gunshot wound in his breast, John Sample, thirty-five years old, of Johnstown, walked from Continental No. 1
to this place, a distance of ten miles.

"I felt faint several times," he said,
"but I kept on walking for fear I would fall."

He was hurried to the city hospital, where his condition is serious. He said he was drinking water at a private hydrant in a yard at Continental No. 1, a mining settlement, when he was shot by an unidentified man.
Sample walked through crowded thoroughfares with his coat tightly buttoned.

merly Miss Vivien Gould, of New York city, gave birth to a son. Lord and ters. Lady Decies, who is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J.

Gould, was married on Feb. 7, 1911,
at the age of nineteen, to John Graham Hope Horsley Beresford, the fifth Baron Decies.

Train, Beheads One-Legged Man.

Pottsville, Pa., April 26.—Francis Zimmerman, of Stanhope, was decapitated and both his arms were cut off

grove and Auburn, when he was overtaken by a fast train while he was walking on the tracks. Zimmerman lost a leg in a mine accident several years ago.

VON KLUCK READY FOR NEW DRIVE

Preparing For Aggressive Campaign Against Allies.

London, April 26.—The armies under General von Kluck, near Soissons, which have been inactive for several weeks, are preparing for a new aggressive campaign, according to the French aviators, who report that the reserve troops have been brought forward close to the firing line and that many heavy field guns have also been placed in position northeast of Soissons.

An attack by the Germans in this quarter has been expected by the French for several days, it being believed that the Kaiser's general staff would seek to cause a weakening of the French offensive between the Meuse and the Moselle by opening an onslaught in the Soissons district, where the position of the Germans is more favorable than in the Champagne country or in the Meuse-Moselle
district.

STOLEN HORSE PAINTED UP

Stove Polish Blacks His White Bald
Face.

Franklin, Pa., April 26.—Matthew L. Hoffman, aged forty-three years, a farmer, was lodged in jail here to await trial for stealing a horse owned by his aged father.

Though the animal was found in his possession, Hoffman denies that he is guilty. The horse was stolen early on Friday morning, and Saturday night
two boys reported to the sheriff that they saw Hoffman riding a horse to his farm, and his arrest followed.

The horse was found in an old pig pen at a remote place on the farm,
and its white face had been painted
with stove polish, the authorities say,
to disguise it.

The father and son had not been on good terms for fifteen years, owing to a disagreement of the mother and son over a piano when the son went to housekeeping.

BEAR SWIMS DAM

Fisherman Drops His Rod and Pulls
For the Shore.

Huntingdon, Pa., April 25.—Out in a small boat on the Warrior Ridge dam of the Juniata river, three miles from here, a fisherman had an exciting experience when a large black bear, driven from its haunts by the forest fires, swam the dam, which is a quarter of a mile wide.

Seeing the bear coming toward him
the boatman dropped his rod in thirty feet of water and pulled for the shore.
The bear continued across the dam
and disappeared in the mountains.

Dope Fiends Steal an Auto.

Washington, April 26.—"Dope fiends" stole the automobile of Dr. J. E. Sans-bury, of Forestville, Md., while he was in Washington, ran it out of town and cut the medicine case open and searched it for morphine, cocaine and similar drugs. The machine was found

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CANNED DELICACIES.

If your maid goes away and unexpected company arrives you will not be without resources if your canned fruit and vegetable cupboard is well stocked. A jar of tomatoes to stew, a jar of cherries for a pudding,
a nice dish of pickled beets and a glass of currant jelly will about make up into a menu that the most fastidious
epicure will enjoy.

Canned Cherry Pudding.—Beat two eggs separately; to the yolks add a half cupful of sugar, a fourth cupful of milk, a pinch of salt, two cupfuls of sifted flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; last stir in lightly the stiff whites. Put batter into a deep pan and push with a spoon until the bottom is covered. Cover the batter with a quart of sour cherries, free from juice, and pour over all a custard made from four eggs, one cupful of milk and one cupful of sugar. Mix the yolks, the milk and the sugar and add the stiffly beaten whites last. Bake in a moderate oven thirty or thirty-five minutes.

Peach Pudding.

Peach Pudding de Luxe.—Line a deep bowl with lady fingers which have been separated, laying the outside of the lady fingers against the dish; pour into the bowl a thin cornstarch pudding flavored with almond or vanilla; fill the bowl about one-fourth; when the cornstarch has settled lay on top of it six halves of canned peaches, fill the bowl with the pudding and lay on top the remainder of the jar of peaches and sprinkle with shredded coconut. This is delicious.

A Few Uses For Jelly.—Jelly is a pleasant addition to rice croquettes.
Pick each croquette and fill the hollow with jelly. When you have roast lamb serve currant jelly with cottage cheese.
In buying the cheese select that which is very dry, add a little salt and mix thoroughly with sweet cream. Lay it in large spoonfuls in a shallow glass dish, and in the hollow places put a spoonful of currant jelly; serve jelly
and cheese on the plate with the meat.
Do not add the jelly to the cheese until ready to place on the table, as it draws water if allowed to stand very long after the jelly has been added.
Use jelly to fill the hollow in baked apples, and as a luncheon dish serve hot rice with a spoonful of jelly. Individual jelly tarts are delicious. Make a rich pie pastry, line individual pie tins and bake a light brown; put in each a spoonful of hot boiled custard and cover with jelly. The hot custard will soften the jelly so it will cover uniformly. Stand in a cool place until ready to serve.

Gelatined Peaches.—Put in individual
compotes a half of a canned peach,
cover with a semicongealed gelatin,
top with a half of peach and a tuft of whipped cream, garnished with a half of an English walnut. This makes a very palatable and attractive dessert.

BLOUSE FOR THE DISCRIMINATING.

This shirt waist model will appeal to the woman who loves simple effects and is designed especially for the development of tub materials.

Good taste in dress is displayed in the simple as well as in elaborate effects, and women of discriminating taste find much to admire in the new shirt waists. Models particularly suited to development in tub materials are interesting at this season. Madras, linen, lawn, batiste, cotton voile or marquise may be used for the waist.
The average size requires 3/4 yard belting 1 inch wide for the stay in addition to 2 1/2 yards 36-inch material for the waist.

The tucks at the front make the design.

Pictorial Review, Waist No. 6195. Sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust. Price, 15 cents.

as notched, terminating at stay; tack
under-arm edges together at lower edge of stay. Center-front indicated by large "O" perforations.

Find the notches on the collar and outline of neck and sew the round collar in place. Any trimming that may be desired can be added to the collar
before it is stitched on to the waist.

Now gather the lower edge of sleeve
between double "TT" perforations; sew flare and turn-back cuffs to gathered edge as notched. Close seam as notched to large "O" perforation. Sew in armhole as notched, easing in any fullness.

If made of very sheer material and worn over a china silk or plain muslin lining, with fancy collar and cuffs added, this model can easily be converted into a dressy design.

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER

Cross Questions.

To play this game it is best to sit in a circle, and until the end of the game
no one must speak above a whisper.
The first player whispers a question to his neighbor, such as "Do you like roses?"

This question now belongs to the second player, and he must remember it.

The second player answers, "Yes;
they smell so sweetly," and this answer belongs to the first player. The second player now asks his neighbor a question, taking care to remember the answer, as it will belong to him. Perhaps he has asked his neighbor, "Are you fond of potatoes?" And the answer may have been, "Yes, when they are fried."

So that the second player has now a question and an answer belonging to him, which he must remember.

The game goes on until every one has been asked a question and given an answer, and each player must be sure and bear in mind that it is the question he is asked and the answer his neighbor gives which belong to him.

At the end of the game each gives his question and answer aloud in the following manner:

"I was asked, 'Do you like roses?'
and the answer was, 'Yes, when they
are fried.'"

The next player says:
"I was asked, 'Are you fond of potatoes?' and the answer was, 'Yes; they are very pretty, but they don't wear
well.'"

The Wasps' Lesson.

An English gentleman lately took a small wasps' nest, about the size of an apple, and, after stupefying its inmates, placed it in a large cage inside of his house, leaving an opening for egress through the wall. Here the nest was enlarged to a foot in diameter, holding thousands of wasps. He was able now to watch their movements,

and he noted one new fact—namely,
their systematic attention to ventilation. In hot weather from four to six wasps were continually stationed at the hole of egress, and, while leaving space for entrance or exit, they created a steady current of fresh air by the exceedingly rapid motion of their wings. After a long course of this vigorous exercise the ventilators were relieved by other wasps. During cool weather only two wasps at a time were usually thus engaged.

When Spiders Molt.

When a spider is preparing to molt
it stops eating for several days and fastens itself by a short line of web
to one of the main lines of its snare,
which holds it firmly while it proceeds to undress. The skin cracks all around the thorax and is held only by the front edge. Next the abdomen is uncovered. Now comes the struggle to free the legs. It works and kicks vigorously and seems to have very hard work. But continued perseverance of about fifteen minutes brings it out of the old dress. It seems almost lifeless and is limp and helpless for several minutes, but gradually it comes back to life and looks brighter and prettier than before. To young people this is an operation of extreme interest.

My Roller Skates.

My roller skates are good as wings
To carry me about,
For kids they are the finest things
That ever were brought out.

Along the street, around the square,
On flying feet I go;
I use my good skates everywhere,
For walking is too slow.

If mamma sends me to the store
I take my skates along
And quickly reach the grocer's door
With my swift strokes and strong.

Then back again without delay
I speed o'er stone and brick,
That often I hear mamma say
"How could you go so quick?"

What Is Fashion?

Fashion may be described as an evidence of the struggle between class and mass.

Class is ever taking up something new in the effort to be distinctive.

Mass is constantly coming pell mell after.

And so the modes are ever changing. What was new to-day may be old to-morrow.

The fact that the advertising columns of this newspaper are constantly telling the story of the changing styles make them vitally interesting to the average woman.

She reads because she wants the touch of fashion at her finger tips always.

SUITS OF

Gros de Londres
and Silk and Wool Poplins

$18.75, 20.00, 22.75

Adaptions from recent imported models, and quoted by the average city advertisement at a higher price, and called a bargain. Suit and Coat values on paper and in the goods themselves, are two distinct propositions usually, for instance calling our

$18.75 Silk Poplins or Gaberdine Suits worth $25.00, doesn't make it so to our conscience. Calling our

$10.00 and 12.00 Serge Suits

worth $15.00 and $16.50 doesn't make them so, unless we or you think so.

Our Special $16.50 Suits

In all the fashionable colors, and fabrics, no two alike in style, could well be called a $22.50 suit, if we cared to ask an exorbitant profit, and the average customer would probably not dispute it. They have the style, the fit and the appearance in a general way of Suits sold elsewhere at higher prices.

New Suits are coming in every day almost. Suits of odd sizes for Women of over or under size.

The Palm Beach Suits

Unlined—are beginning to arrive, in Sand and Grey Colors. Just the thing for warmer weather and for hard usage such as Mountain or Seaside wear, Automobileing, Railroad or Carriage Riding, Etc. While mostly light in color, do not show soil readily and best of all can be washed when necessary. Palm Beach Cloth is a wool fabric, if genuine, don't let any one fool you by naming anything to you as such, that is not wool. The prices are very moderate—

$7.75, 8.75, 9.75
for stylishly made Suits.

Coats, In Seasonable Weights

Our new connection with one of the greatest New York City buying syndicates places us in a position of value giving (not only in Ready to Wear Coats, but also in many other lines) that we have never enjoyed before.

New Lines of Coats

In Ladies' and Misses' sizes, just received to sell at $5.00, 5.75, 7.75, 10.00

are much below in prices of similar qualities we have had.

New Styles coming in every week.

Special at $10.00

Is White Eppo Cloth, similar in appearance to Chin Chilli, but doesn't soil as readily, a new shape. Some new "Wooltex" Sport Coats at $10.00 in Black and White Checks, Duveline, Wide Wale Serges and Crepe Poplins, made in the "Wooltex" way with their guarantee, are wonders.

Coats at $15.00, 20.00 to 25.00 of Cloths, Silks, Etc.

Children's Coats

6 to 14 years at $3.00 to $5.00

have the value appearance with style and quality that makes them under priced, they are new too, just came a few days ago.

Dress Skirts

A great season for the separate skirt, we confess to a shortage of stock all season, until now. Just received 150 Wool and Wash Skirts with more to follow right along, Serges, Poplins and Gabardines in Black and Navys, also Checks & Colored fabrics, at $3.75, 5.00, 5.75 to 7.00

very newest ideas, Great variety and splendid values, wish we had space for descriptions.

The Wash Skirts

of Cotton Gabardines, Cord de Roys, Linens & other popular fabrics have arrived in great quantities, The New Suspender Skirt, Sport Styles and the more reserved styles, all here. Prices begin at

$1.00 up in easy stages to 5.00

including those made by the "Wooltex" factory, which is perfection or the last word in tailoring.

Lingerie Silk Waists, Silk and Wash Dresses, Children's Dresses and Children's Play Clothes, Etc., we will take up at another time.

Hundreds of new things have arrived in the last week.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy. Thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

White, wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and, you appear years younger.

Tom Faxon's Transformation

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

When Colonel Bankhead of the British army went to fight with the allies in Belgium his daughter, Gladys, insisted on going also to the front as a nurse. The colonel endeavored to persuade her, but she was a girl of strong will and strong character, and his objections proved futile.

About the time the war broke out Thomas Faxon, an American, came of age. His mother, a widow, had previously had the whipland of him, for his fortune had been left to him in trust for him until he should attain his majority. Meanwhile Mrs. Faxon continued to regard her son as a child, and when he was twelve years of age he was in care of a nurse who the moment he started in for some boyish sport that would soil his clothes or by which he might possibly get hurt would clap her hands on him and drag him away.

Tommy, as he was called, while he occasionally rebelled against such treatment, could not help being lamentably affected by it. Indeed, so maidenly did he appear that no one would suspect there was a spark of manliness in him. However, Tommy became the possessor of his estate just before the war broke out abroad, sniffing the air of liberty and of battle at the same time. He resolved to go abroad and see what was going on. So accustomed was he to obeying his mother that it was with great difficulty that he broke away from her, but once the breach had been effected he struck out with what manliness there was naturally in him, mingled with the feminine effects of his training.

One day Tom turned up on the northern coast of France occupied by the English army. He told a soldier that he wanted to enlist. The man looked at the immaculately dressed Tommy, with difficulty repressing a smile at his spats and kid gloves, and pointed to the quarters of Colonel Bankhead. Tommy proceeded there and found the colonel with his daughter, who was in Red Cross uniform.

"I want to be a soldier," said Tom. The colonel looked at him in surprise, asked him if he knew anything about soldiering and when answered in the negative told him he had better go to England and enlist there to be trained. This didn't please Tommy, and he declined the advice. Then spoke up Miss Bankhead:

"I think the gentleman would be of more use as a Red Cross nurse."

Now, Miss Bankhead was a very comely young woman, and Tommy, who was like a bird that had just left the paternal nest, was ready to wing in any direction that pleased his fancy.

"Thank you very much," he said, with a low bow. "Can you tell me where to go to work?"

"Come with me."

When Tommy was put to work nursing the sick and wounded it was remarked that he should not do the uniform of the women nurses. It was laughable to see him perform his duties, but in time he grew accustomed to them, taking his instructions from Miss Gladys, with whom he at once became violently enamored. She laughed at him, but at the same time soothed him.

With the first fight that came on after Tom joined the Red Cross he was sent forward with others of the corps to pick up the wounded. While doing so a hailstorm of bullets swept the field, and every man of the corps sought cover. Tom was at the time ministering to a youngster of eighteen who was badly hit. Since he was looking in the direction from which the bullets came Tom did not see that he was the only nurse left on the field. Then, turning and seeing what had happened, he took the wounded boy in his arms and started with him for cover.

Now, the soldier weighed pretty nearly as much as Tom, and Tom staggered under the load. The boy begged his rescuer to drop him and save himself, but Tom staggered on amid the storm of bullets and finally entered the British lines in no worse condition than a bullet in the fleshy part of his leg, from which streamed the red blood.

Tom put down his burden and, not heeding a cheer that greeted his feat, turned fiercely toward the enemy. Near by he saw a regiment saluting forth on a bayonet charge.

"I want a gun!" cried Tom, the hot blood boiling in his veins. "Where can I get a gun?"

"Take mine," said a wounded soldier. Tom seized the piece and ran like a deer to the advancing regiment and fell into its ranks. When he came in from a bayonet charge he was carried part way, being faint from loss of blood flowing from a wound of which he was ignorant.

Such deeds usually become quickly known. Miss Bankhead heard of Tom's exploit and reported it to her father, the colonel. Tom soon stood upon his legs again and was ordered to report at regimental headquarters.

"You have accomplished a feat," said the colonel, "worthy of the Victoria cross. Enlist at once if you choose, and I will recommend you for a commission and the cross as well."

"I don't care for the cross, colonel," said Tom. "I want your daughter."

"We will see about that at some other time."

But Tom and Gladys found time to plight their troth, and Tom became a captain in the defense of Calais.
